LIBERTY SAVARD MINISTRIES, INC.

Merry Christmas 2000 and Happy New Year 2001 from Liberty!

HOW INCREDIBLE IT IS to be facing a New Year with a powerful New Mandate from God, an exciting New Schedule, and a New Burst of Enthusiasm and Gratitude that He has allowed and is still allowing me to continue in His Kingdom work!

The new mandate from God is to focus on training more teachers to teach this message. I did not realize how thrilling it would be to go through our first Level I LSM Training Center Teachers' Certification Training Seminar last September. Thirty-six student teachers were trained and tested and tried within an inch of their souls' lives! I was so overwhelmed that I wept as I watched the intense postures and faces of these students, poring over their Keys of the Kingdom trilogy books and their Bibles while writing, writing, writing—determined to express their understanding of the Keys of the Kingdom message. This was the "first wave" of LSM student teachers—Baby Eagle Teachers who will always hold a very special place in my heart!

Reading about these prayer principles is exciting. Using these prayer principles is a powerful way to get free to be all you were created to be in God's Kingdom. Sharing these prayer principles opens up a new understanding of effective prayer. Teaching these prayer principles brings vibrant clarity to the Bible and opens a stream of new revelation that causes you to see everything in a new light. I often autograph my books with:

READ IT—USE IT—SHARE IT—TEACH IT!

This is how you will know the fullness of Jesus' giving of the Keys in Matthew 16:19.

Do not restrict your future because others have said you will never be more than you already are. God has said that He has plans to prosper you and give you hope and a future (Jer. 29:11). Ask Him what He wants you to do right now with the understanding you have and the understanding that He will unfold to you as you step out to share it. Tell Him that you are:

- determined to believe and receive all He has for you,
- determined to accept the truth that you are a special and unique creation of God Almighty himself,
- determined to agree that you have been preordained and destined to make a difference in the world!

Much of my future teaching and traveling will be geared towards training others to teach. I am looking forward to writing more new books as well, with four mini-books coming out in January. I am praying and wishing for all of you that you would know the fullness of how much He loves you, who you are in Christ, and that you would fully enjoy your destiny purposes in the Kingdom. Happy New Year and may God's richest blessings be yours!

— Liberty (Mother Eagle!)

New "libertysavard.com" Books Being Printed for January 2001 Release

I have been blessed to have a very active prayer and counseling ministry through the LSM website's Question and Answer section (<http://www.libertysavard.com>). The Lord has anointed me to minister to many who have sent tough e-mail questions. We have collected these questions and answers in a new series of mini-books. Four of these mini-books will be released in January 2001.

libertysavard.com on Soul Ties, Soul Power, and Soulish Prayers

libertysavard.com on Freedom Here & Now

libertysavard.com on Relationships

libertysavard.com on Spiritual Warfare Basics

Following are selected excerpts from these books:

libertysavard.com on Soul ties, Soul Power, and Soulish Prayers (excerpt)

Question (first e-mail): My daughter met a man she felt God wanted her to marry. A friend and I prayed about this, and after having visions about my daughter and this young man marrying, we felt this was God's will. My daughter and I prayed together about it with much fervency, especially after a prophetic word from a minister that seemed to confirm what we were praying about. We also heard preaching that said even if what you are believing to get from God looks impossible in the natural, don't give up. The young man has now walked away from God and has made many wrong choices, including marrying another woman. My daughter and I are devastated. I am certain this man knew my daughter was chosen of God for him, but he rebelled. Did I pray wrong? Betty Liberty's Answer: You have prayed soulish prayers with your friend and with your daughter. Such soulish praying opens doorways for deception, confusion, and soul ties. Soul ties are formed when wrong agreements are made that have nothing to do with God's will. You need to repent and ask God to forgive you. He will. Then discuss this with your daughter and ask her to do the same thing. Both of you should forgive this young man for his choices and actions, pray and bind him to God's will, and let God work out His plans for his life.

Question (second e-mail): If these prayers and beliefs were wrong, then why did we have the visions, why were they confirmed by a minister who didn't know us, and why do we still feel this man is the one?

Liberty's Answer: Because people were praying personal agendas rather than praying that God's will would be done in each life involved! Confusion and deception are always an outcome of soulish prayers.

The unsundered soul rarely wants what God knows is best for everyone in any situation. You can cooperate with God now to reverse the attempts of the enemy to capitalize on your soulish prayers. You can break the effect and influences of those wrong agreements through loosing prayers: Lord, I loose, smash, crush, and shatter all of the effects and influences of the wrong agreements I made. I'm agreeing with you right now that your will shall be done in this circumstance, Lord, because you alone know what is best.

The difference between receiving a "word" from the Lord in the born-again spirit and receiving a deception in the unsundered soul can be hard to recognize when you have personal goals you are trying to get God to meet. God wants everyone here on track with His will, and your right agreement with Him will bring it to pass.

libertysavard.com on Freedom Here & Now (excerpt)

Question: I was in the ministry, but turned away to pursue another profession which made a complete break in my relationship with God. After a period of time, I rededicated my life to the Lord and asked Him to forgive me, but He doesn't seem to be answering my prayers anymore. I'm staggering under a huge debt load, I distrust everyone, including God, and I'm at my wits' end. I'm thinking of just ending it all. Maybe then God will listen. Ralph

Liberty's Answer: Your unsundered soul is rejecting input from God while layering discouragement, depression, and burden upon your existing unmet needs, unhealed hurts, and unresolved issues. When we are the most desperate, we usually want very soulish answers, not His answers. In love, God withholds answers that would cause us to remain in our misery. You should be very grateful that God has not answered some of your prayers since you have not been hearing His answers.

When God does not give what we want, our souls insist that He does not care and cannot be trusted! All the while, God knows that the answer the soul is seeking will only prolong the pain. So, our souls sulk and reject all other divine input.

No one ever wins a standoff with God!

Victory as a Christian comes only through surrender of your will and obedience to God's Word. This requires complete trust in the goodness and love of God toward you. Unfortunately, the words obedience and surrender to God cause your unsundered soul to hit the trenches for a war of control. You cannot trust what your soul will tell you about not trusting God. That is like asking a compulsive liar if he is telling you the truth! Just know this:

The unsundered soul is capable of doing anything that it feels will protect its control over a human life.

The Keys of the Kingdom can open up soulish deception like an electric can opener. If the message of these prayer principles only deluded, promoted denial, or gave false hope, people would have stopped praying them long ago. These prayer principles strip away the smoke and mirrors, satanic deceptions, and religious half truths in your soul, getting right down to the real sources of its anger, fear, and pain. The end result is that God can then get into your needs and wounds with healing and truth.

When you know you are using something that works and going somewhere that is spiritually real and permanent—a new determination settles on you. This determination will carry you through when your soul starts kicking and screaming as it senses it is losing its grip on your life. The choice is yours.

Question: The person I've been dating (and was going to marry) broke up with me. I believe _____ has many deep hurts and I want to help. I love this person unconditionally with all my heart and would do anything, or make any sacrifice, to see _____ healed. Will you please pray for us to find our way back to each other?

Liberty's Answer: Too often hurting and needy people think, "If I am willing to go through sacrifice and pain, then God will help me to help this person be healed." These are the unhealthy words of a soul so full of unmet needs, it believes that God may be willing to accept personal sacrifice and pain from one human in exchange for a meaningful relationship with another human.

God did not create you to be a human sacrifice because He had no other way to heal and restore this other person. The Ultimate Sacrifice for every person's healing and wholeness has already been made!

If we had the option of becoming sacrifices for other peoples' healings, would that not give our souls control over their destinies? (Do I want to give up my personal agendas to be JJ's healing sacrifice? Can I get back to you on that, God?) Would you want your healing and wholeness to be dependent upon someone else's willingness to sacrifice themselves for your destiny purposes? Probably not. Taking a phrase from pop music, there "ain't no mountain high enough, ain't no valley low enough," nor devil, nor man, nor woman, nor opportunity, nor career, nor deception that can keep a relationship from you if God has chosen His best for you! If you really trust Him, you can wait for Him to bring His best forth. In the meantime, you can get on with your life now.

Set your will to cooperate with Him, and begin some very focused praying. Not a word about the other person or relationship—because you are trusting God with that, right? You may be surprised at how hard that is for you to do right now!

Begin to bind your will to the will of God and bind your mind to the mind of Christ. Bind yourself to the truth in the Word. This requires that you immerse yourself in the Word daily in order to hear the truth from God, not just to "use" the Word to find promises to hold God to! Loose the effects and influences out of your soul of every wrong agreement you have ever spoken, entered into, or believed. Loose your soul's efforts and agendas to get what it believes will fulfill you. Ask the Lord to work in you so that you will be healed, restored, renewed, and ready for His best!

Question: How do I pray for Brandon who is addicted to pornography? This problem began when he was only 5 years old. Whenever he is feeling down, he turns to porno. When he is bored, he turns to porno. MOST IMPORTANTLY, when he's getting closer to Jesus, he turns and porno draws him back. He was raised in church, but he doesn't feel right going to his church for help because they don't treat porno addicts the same way they treat others with more "acceptable problems." Can you help me?

Liberty's Answer: Such wrong behaviors come from unmet needs and unhealed hurts within a person's soul. The hurting soul learns how to produce a behavior that releases endorphins ("feel good hormones"). This behavior becomes addictive as the body craves more of the temporary good feeling. These God-created internal opiates are capable of lifting one's feelings, strengthening the immune system, and breaking up pain signals the body sends to the brain. Remember the Scripture that says "a merry heart doeth good like a medicine"?

It seems that God intended these internal opiates to be released into our systems through prayer, creative activity, laughter, married sexual activity, and physical exercise. He fashioned "opiate receptors" in the human brain that receive these endorphins. There is a potential problem with these receptors, however, as they do not recognize the difference between an intended "proper" release of endorphins (this word means "morphine within") and a self-induced release from a potentially destructive human behavior. These receptors in the brain do not recognize the difference in chemical opiates introduced into the body from external sources, i.e. man-made drugs.

Whenever there is any introduction or release of opiates into the body (natural or chemical), there is a neural pathway laid down between the brain and the body regarding the activity that prompted the opiate "rush." Each repeated release of opiates etches that neural pathway deeper, causing an ever increasing need for larger amounts of the opiate to reproduce the same feeling.

Self-induced actions and behaviors that are inappropriate to a godly life style can cause a mind-body agreement that produces "pleasure on demand," a mental/physical cycle that can be very hard to break if the person knows no other way to blot out pain, discouragement, and depression. The good news is that this cycle can be broken with binding and loosing prayers! Tell Brandon that some people have endorphin deficiencies, which science says makes them prone to depression, impaired immune systems, and addictions. Get him to think about all the possibilities of praying, exercising, and laughing, all to increase his endorphin levels. Pray this way for him:

Father, I bind _____'s will to your will and his/her mind to the mind of Christ. I bind _____ to the full truth of your love, concern, and willingness to empower him/her to overcome all wrong behaviors designed to dull or pacify the pain in his/her soul. I loose the enemy's assignments from _____ that would attempt to plunge him/her deeper into despair and addictive bondage. I loose all wrong beliefs, wrong ideas, and wrong mindsets from _____'s soul. I loose the effects and influences of wrong agreements, wrong covenants, and wrong vows from _____. I loose the influence of soul ties from _____. I loose—smash, crush, and destroy—the mind-body connections that are pulling _____ back into addictive behaviors and causing an ever downward spiraling of hopelessness. I loose all stronghold thinking protecting wrong beliefs that this IS THE ONLY WAY _____ can ever feel any relief from the need and pain being felt. Lord, please pour great mercy and grace and forgiveness upon _____ and meet the unmet needs, heal the unhealed hurts, and answer the unresolved issues in his/her soul. Thank you for doing this. Amen

LSM TEAM Report from United Kingdom Tour November, 2000

God bless America! The LSM Team (Liberty, Marian, and Evelyn) had four blessed weeks in the United Kingdom, accumulating experiences and memories that are priceless. But it is so good to come home!

On November 2nd, we arrived in London after an 11 hour flight, and then flew to Edinburgh Scotland where we were met by our hosts Stephen and Christine Blakey. Our first retreat was in a wonderful old, castle-like mansion called the Gartmore House. I confessed to some of the Scottish people there that I had been worried about whether or not they would accept me. They admitted they had been worried about the same thing, after seeing Americans on television. Then one lady said, "But you are so un-American, you're just like us!" I felt like Paul when he said that when in Rome, he was as a Roman! I learned some new words there, too, such as "boofy." When I asked what a boofy was, a man said, "Well, what do you call it in America when the food is all laid out on a table and you choose what you want?"

We met some Highland Cattle near Gartmore, shaggy blond "cows" with long, curly bangs covering their eyes. Too cute! We ate in a Scottish country pub, toured St. Andrews, and devoured warm lemon scones with strawberry jam and double cream (double YUM), before meetings in an Edinburgh hotel. After a conference at Glen Rothes with the Blakeys, we traveled up to NE Scotland, a sightseeing event that defies description!

In NE Scotland Sacha Laing had done an excellent job of organizing meetings in Ellon, Peterhead, and Fraserburgh. We genuinely enjoyed the wonderful people of Scotland. However, we did get a little weary of hearing, "Aye, and ya still have no president yet, d'ya know!" We prayed much for America as we stood on soil so far from home.

In Newcastle England, we stayed with Randy and Dorothy Vickers, two delightful new friends. There I enjoyed Nunchy Cruts, clotted cream, and their extremely creative yellow toaster that threw toast out in all directions as if it were in an Olympic tryout! Once, upon being laughed at for my "English" by three "proper Englishmen," I chided back that anyone who called food "bubble and squeak" and "singing hinnies" had no place correcting my English, thank you very much. I spoke twice for the Vickers at their Northumbrian Healing Centre of Prayer and then at their annual conference at Minsteracres, an old stone mansion turned into a large Catholic retreat center. We toured the awesome Durham Cathedral and Hexham Abbey (both 1000 years old). Americans truly do not have a concept of "history" like the English and Scots do.

Robert and Alice Ward were our next hosts. In a leadership seminar on Thanksgiving Day, Robert called leaders to pray for us and our country, asking us to forgive the English for their wrong attitudes towards Americans. It was a time of many tears and much strengthening of family ties in God. A seminar followed at the Bethshan Christian Centre after a television interview on the God Channel (reaching 58 countries) with Wendy Alleck.

Andy Toman, my designer from Bridge-Logos Publishing, joined us to be our guide in South England. Coming to meet up with us in Newcastle, a passing truck lost a large scaffolding pipe which crashed through the windshield of Andy's van (which was traveling 70 mph). It sailed past his head and exited out through the rear window. We spent heartfelt time giving God glory for His protection and love.

Andy drove the LSM team down to London, where we spent a hilarious couple of hours trying to find our hotel. Andy is really cute, but somewhat directionally impaired, and I as his co-pilot have always been geographically impaired. And Londoners do not give the most explicit of directions, we found out. No street names. "Just go down to the second light, turn at the roundabout and then go a little ways until you see the park and go half around it and up the hill—can't miss it, old chap." Want to bet?

Roundabouts, if you have not experienced them, are where everyone just sort of "pours" into a circular road from all directions, and you all go around and around until you can dive off on the road you want.

We took a tour bus (genuine double-decker, open air!) around London to view all of the famous historical sights, getting off to eat what Andy (a true Brit) called "pub grub." We loved it. We "shopped" in the famous Harrods Department Store—well, actually we just looked. In a future book, I will describe the remarkable story of "Andy, the Waterproof Angel, and the Car Key in the Toilet Bowl!" that almost stranded us in London!

As we drove out of London to go south to Croyden for a final speaking engagement at Folly's End Church, we got lost in places Londoners don't even know about. Finally in Croyden, we had a marvelous Greek lunch with Jimmy the Greek. The meeting that night was wonderful, with a large group of young people in the audience who were fascinated with the binding and loosing principles.

Our last full day in England, we met with my UK book distributors, Ed and Elizabeth Harding, who took us to an authentic English village Tea Shoppe. There we had tea and an unusual double-crust pie filled with slices of pumpkin. It was as close to Thanksgiving dinner as we got! Later Andy, Ed, and I wandered around the ruins of Canterbury Castle at twilight. What an unbelievable experience, looking up at the roofless walls of this beautiful old castle, a stone staircase still curving upwards towards the early stars. I pondered the thoughts, hopes, and fears of those who had walked those stairs hundreds of years ago. Did they have a relationship with the Lord? Whose hand held their hearts when the enemy attacked and began to destroy their castle?

The next morning, we drove to Heathrow Airport and after seven hours we were headed home to arrive in America twelve hours later! Our trip was a wonderful experience, and the meetings were awesome. We're so grateful to everyone who made it such a rewarding experience. I am especially grateful to God who gave us this honor and privilege of serving Him in the UK.

“ ” Testimonies Sent to the LSM Office

Someone gave me a copy of Shattering Your Strongholds and told me that Psalm 91 was my assurance of God's protection for my family. I immediately began using the binding and loosing prayers in SYS and prayed Psalm 91 over my loved ones. On July 17, 2000, my father took my six-year-old son with him to wade in shallow Cow Creek (less than a foot deep) near our home in Orange TX. I felt very troubled at work all that morning. Driving back to work after lunch, I prayed, "Lord, I bind myself to you as a baby is bound to its parent. I bind myself to Your will, Your Word, to the Heart of God, and to the mind of Christ." A sudden sense of panic overwhelmed me and the Holy Spirit said, "Cry out!" I began screaming, "God, save my child! Don't let him drown." This was at 12:55 p.m.

A little after 3 p.m. I received a phone call that my father, Rev. Robert Davis, had drowned and my child was at Newton County Sheriff's Department. I later learned that Weldon Cagle, 73 years old, had been driving when he suddenly decided to stop and walk beside Cow Creek. Barely able to hear even with hearing aids, he heard my little boy, Robert, crying for help. He found my exhausted young son at 1:15 p.m., holding onto a limb with only his face out of the water. Some may believe in God, but I've had a divine encounter with God and I'll never be the same.

—Lisa Davis Monk

Thanks so very much for obeying the Holy Spirit in the researching of binding and loosing! This has set me so free in my soul, I feel born again, again!!! I am understanding more why I have had the blockage in my mind and could not get "break-through" or "break-out." There is still more to be done, and I just truly thank Almighty God Jehovah for this understanding and His power to execute it!

— Minister C. Jones

In 1996, I was poring over many books by various authors, determined to find answers to problems I had struggled with for over twenty years. Yours was the one I felt held the "key" I was looking for. As I prayed the prayers, I immediately sensed a calm in my spirit and mind which had been in turmoil for a long time. As a minister's wife with turmoil in my home, I have struggled for years to teach others what I knew to be the truths of God's Word. Yet I could never find strength to tear down my own strongholds. I have a large library, but if I were in a position to be left with only my Bible and one other book, there is no doubt in my mind it would be one of yours. Thank you for obeying God against what seemed to be all odds!

—RM

I have seen so many miracles since I got your book. Such major healing and restoration on my job, my boss had me order 7 books for him. He gave them out, and asked me to order 12 more. Another person I work with asked me to order 6 more. I believe you are an end-time ministry of preparation for the Body of Christ for the return of our Lord. Thank you for being faithful to your calling so others can see the truth and be set free to reach their destinies!

Keys of the Kingdom— LSM Training Center TEACHERS' CERTIFICATION Seminars

This past September, the LSM Training Center completed the first Level I Teachers' Certification Training for 36 new "Baby Eagle Teachers" to teach the Keys of the Kingdom Message. The "Baby Eagle Teachers" who passed certification to teach are now available for starting Bible studies, teaching this message in Sunday School classes, holding home meetings, and pulpit ministry. "Mother Eagle" Liberty is personally recommending these teachers while she continues to mentor their development as teachers of the Word. Perhaps a Certified Baby Eagle Teacher lives near you and is available for ministry. Contact LSM office at 916-721-7770 to find out.

Here are the next Teachers' Certification Seminars scheduled for 2001:

- February 27-March 3, 2001
Riverside, California—
